

The most common symptom of cervical cancer is bleeding from the vagina at times other than when you are having a period. This includes between periods, after or during sex, at any time if you are past the menopause.

Some women also have:

- Vaginal discharge that smells unpleasant
- Discomfort or pain during sex

If you have any of the symptoms listed above, particularly if:

- They are not normal for you
- They are persistent
- There are repeated episodes
- They do not go away

... be sure to visit your doctor for a check up.

The most common symptom of womb cancer is: Abnormal bleeding from the vagina – especially in women who have had their menopause and stopped having periods.

Less common/advanced symptoms can include:

- Pain or discomfort in the lower abdomen
- Pain during sex
- Loss of appetite and weight
- Tiredness or weakness
- Feeling or being sick
- Constipation
- Feeling breathless
- Passing urine more often than usual

It is rare to have symptoms if you have very early stage vaginal cancer or changes in the lining of the vagina called VAIN.

The most common symptoms of vaginal cancer are:

- Blood-stained vaginal discharge
- Bleeding after sexual intercourse and pain
- Problems with passing urine (such as blood in the urine, the need to pass urine frequently and the need to pass urine at night)
- Pain in the back passage (rectum)
- Vaginal itch that won't go away
- Lump or growth in the vagina that you or your doctor can feel

OVARIAN CANCER

Many women with a very early stage of ovarian cancer often don't have any symptoms at all. Your awareness of your symptoms is the first and most important step – early diagnosis can save lives. Symptoms may be very vague but can include:

- Feeling bloated (having a swollen tummy)
- Feeling full quickly and / or loss of appetite
- Pain or discomfort in the lower tummy area and / or back
- Needing to pass urine more often or more urgently
- Changes in bowel habits
- Constipation
- Weight gain or weight loss
- Unexplained or extreme tiredness

Symptoms of vulval cancer can include:

- A lasting itch, pain or soreness and thickened, raised, red, white or dark patches on the skin of the vulva.
- Open sore or growth visible on the skin
- Burning pain when you pass urine
- Vaginal discharge or bleeding
- A mole on the vulva that changes shape or colour
- Lump or swelling in the vulva

Remember, most women with symptoms like these do not have cancer... if you're concerned, be sure to visit your doctor for a check up.
